

Volcanoes in Print

Special Collections Display

From the startling works of Athanasias Kircher (1602-1680), who tried to envisage what the inner workings of the earth looked like, to the beautiful colour prints from William Hamilton's (1736-1803) description of the eruption of Vesuvius, the University of St Andrews Special Collections holds some of the most remarkable examples of 'volcanoes in print' from throughout history. Come to this display to encounter them firsthand!

2-3pm, Thursday 6th December 2018
New Park, Martyr's Kirk

All welcome—just drop in any time during the hour! Please contact dawn.hollis@st-andrews.ac.uk if you have any questions.